Portable Brosix

* Instant messaging on the move * Allows users to easily share photos, edit profile, view offline status of friends and share screen with them. * Allows users to edit profile, chat with friends, photo/video sharing * Work in offline mode with photos and messages. * Works in offline mode with multi-account support. * Use multiple accounts on a single device I am thinking of using the GPS data to detect a closed road and show a warning to the user. I have found this in the Openstreetmap website v=9.18 m=road.6053 l=milestone.milestone_turn_to_600-0.300,milestone.milestone_turn_to_600-0.400 e=1 But it doesn't have any distance to go. I think the problem is with the distance to go but I am not sure. There is something wrong with this line v=9.18 m=road.6053 Thanks! A: It is just part of a bigger URL; you can see the whole URL in the response. The relevant part here is m, which stands for a segment on the OSM map, and 6053 is the ID of the segment in question. (The ID is associated with the way). You can use the API to get this information directly: A: The Wikipedia URL for this feature is here: m=road.6053 l=milestone.milestone_turn_to_600-0.300,milestone.milestone_turn_to_600-0.400 e=1 Q: How to remove/add paragraph of paragraph in java? As a follow up question to this one. I need to remove or add a paragraph of a paragraph on my program. How can I do that? I was trying to do this with a counter and it's not working. (...) sb.append(" "); int paragraph = 1;
